Purple persons have remarkable latitude in career and they succeed in many fields. They are imaginative, enthusiastic, and can do almost anything which is of interest to them. At work, they are at ease with colleagues, and others enjoy their presence. They are highly creative in dealing with people and are outstanding at inspiring group spirit and getting people together. Purples are likely to lose interest in their job once people or projects become routine. They prefer people oriented careers and job opportunities, which allow creativity and variety in day-to-day operations.
